

ABSTRACT

A method for the treatment of chronic wounds in vertebrates, and compositions for use in the method, said compositions comprising synthetic antioxidants based on hindered piperidine or hindered phenol structures. The compositions optionally comprise carrier compounds that can include hydrogels.